Province-wide picture

2024 certified vs. November 2026 count in progress

• All 93 ridings show fewer ballots considered than the certified 2024 total. This is not a district-level turnout comparison because current registered-voter counts by riding are not included.

Geography of NDP share change

Weighted regional vote-share difference, 2024 certified to 6 November 2026

Nine analytical regional groupings (not Elections BC official regions). Negative values mean a lower NDP share of valid votes than in 2024.

The largest weighted NDP declines are on the North Shore / Sea-to-Sky, in Vancouver and in Surrey. These aggregates cannot establish why individual voters voted as they did.

Methods, sources and limitations

How the comparisons were constructed

2024 benchmark

Certified Elections BC 2024 Statement of Votes; 93 electoral districts. Shares use valid votes rather than registered voters.

2026 snapshot

Elections BC in-progress final count, captured at 19:00 PCT, 6 Nov 2026. Later updates are deliberately excluded from these calculations.

5 November comparison

Archived revised initial-count party results, 5 Nov at 14:20 PCT. Deltas refer to changes in reported tallies, not individual voter behavior.

Turnout caution

Preliminary participation = ballots considered / registered voters (as of 14 Oct 2026); 2024 used a different registration reference date. District ballot-count changes must not be described as riding turnout changes.

Regional groupings

Custom analytical groups derived from riding names. Regional NDP shares are weighted by the sum of valid votes, not the average of riding percentages.

Leading-party caution

“Leading” means the most reported votes at this snapshot, not an official declaration. Further count, verification or recounts could change margins or leads.

Candidate coverage

Party appearances vary by riding. An absent party is reported as zero; grouped “Other” includes multiple candidates and must not be interpreted as a single party or direct vote transfer.
