BC Provincial Election 2026

Riding-by-riding comparison of the certified 2024 election and revised 2026 preliminary results. Latest Elections BC snapshot: November 5, 2026, 2:20 p.m. PCT.

NEW OFFICIAL VERIFICATION: The initial-count figures were revised on 5 November. The final count of outstanding mail-in and absentee ballots is scheduled for 6–10 November. None of the 93 riding leaders changed in this revision.

Indicator	2024 certified	2026 preliminary	Change
BC NDP valid-vote share	44.87%	37.37%	-7.49 pp
Conservative valid-vote share	43.28%	48.08%	+4.80 pp
BC Green valid-vote share	8.24%	10.96%	+2.72 pp
NDP riding wins / current leads	47	28	−19 net
Ballots cast / considered	2,109,658	1,798,960	-14.7% provisional
Participation (province)	58.45%	48.12%	-10.33 pp provisional

Three findings from the revised figures

• The NDP vote share remains lower in 83 of 93 ridings compared with 2024. Twenty 2024 NDP-winning ridings are now led by another party; Courtenay–Comox is the one NDP gain.

• The decline remains geographically uneven. The largest weighted vote-share falls are in North Shore / Sea-to-Sky, Vancouver and Surrey; the smallest are in Southern Interior / Kootenays / Coast.

• All 93 ridings have fewer ballots included than in the certified 2024 count. The 48.12% provincial participation figure is not final and uses a different voter-registration date.

Reading this report: Percentage-point swings compare party shares of valid votes within the same riding, not the percentage change in votes. Aggregate vote changes cannot establish individual voter switching.

1 | What changed on November 5?

The November 4 workbook retained Elections BC's October 26 initial-count totals. Elections BC published revised initial-count figures on November 5, at 14:20 PCT. The table below compares the two official snapshots.

Metric	4 Nov version	5 Nov revision	Difference
BC NDP	670,811	670,660	-151
Conservatives	862,688	862,750	+62
BC Greens	196,896	196,644	-252
Other / independent	64,738	64,498	-240
All valid votes	1,795,133	1,794,552	-581
All ballots considered	1,799,550	1,798,960	-590

55 of 93 ridings have at least one changed numerical field, but zero ridings changed leading party. There were 581 fewer valid votes and 590 fewer total ballots considered after verification. These are revisions, not the scheduled final count.

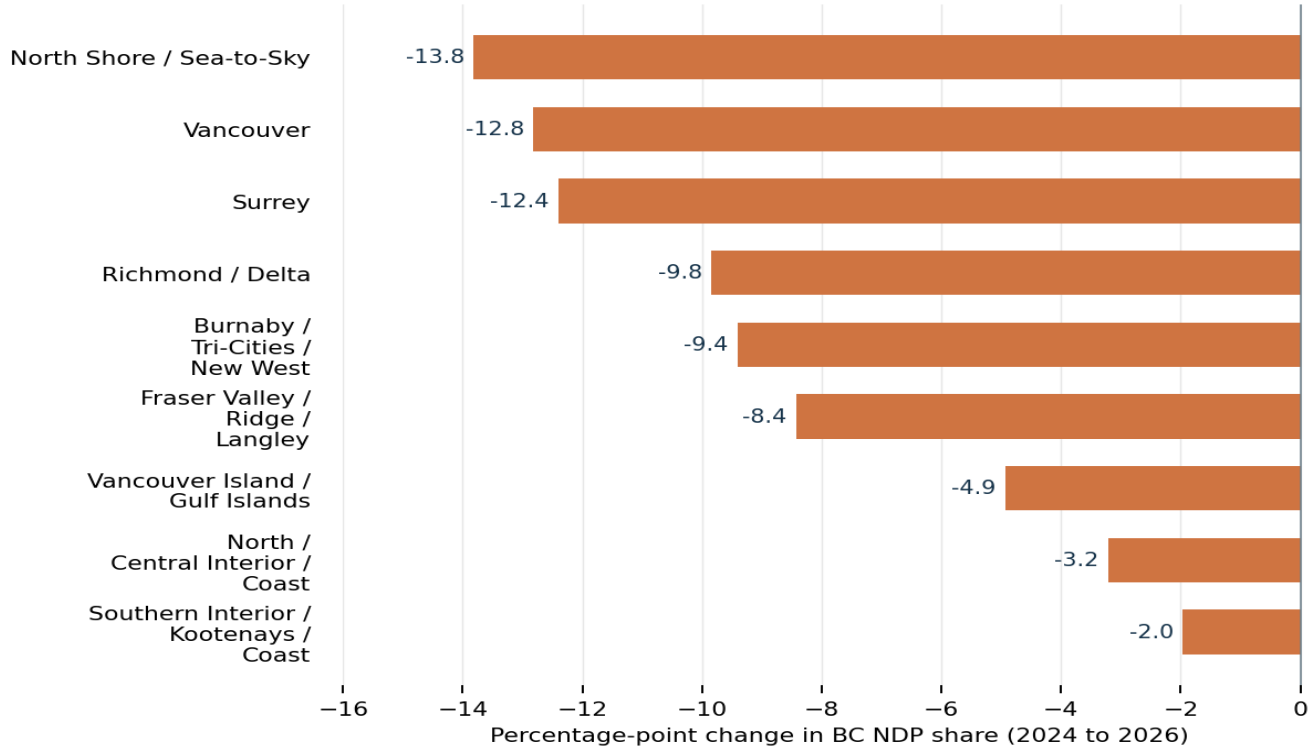

Largest changes to riding valid-vote totals

These are changes to counted vote totals, not evidence of votes changing from one party to another. The complete audit trail for all 93 ridings is in the Excel workbook.

Vancouver-South Granville	-85	-60	-22	-178	-173

Abbotsford West	+32	+77	0	+133	+130
Richmond-Queensborough	+21	+73	+4	+98	+98
Courtenay-Comox	-48	-31	-13	-94	-94
Salmon Arm-Shuswap	+26	+24	+16	+82	+84

2 | The geography of the decline

These are custom analytical areas rather than Elections BC administrative regions. Each area’s share is calculated using its total valid votes in the respective election, rather than an unweighted average of riding shares.

Analytical region	Ridings	NDP 2024	NDP 2026	Δ share	NDP leads
North Shore / Sea-to-Sky	4	43.0%	29.2%	-13.8 pp	2→1
Vancouver	12	58.3%	45.5%	-12.8 pp	11→8
Surrey	10	46.2%	33.8%	-12.4 pp	4→0
Richmond / Delta	6	43.5%	33.7%	-9.8 pp	2→0
Burnaby / Tri-Cities / New West	10	53.9%	44.4%	-9.4 pp	10→5
Fraser Valley / Ridge / Langley	10	42.8%	34.3%	-8.4 pp	1→0
Vancouver Island / Gulf Islands	15	46.0%	41.0%	-4.9 pp	12→10
North / Central Interior / Coast	11	28.7%	25.4%	-3.2 pp	1→1
Southern Interior / Kootenays / Coast	15	38.2%	36.2%	-2.0 pp	4→3

The largest declines are seen across the North Shore, Vancouver and Surrey. The reductions in the number of ballots counted are present in every area; without comparable final 2026 riding electorate figures, they should not be described as final riding-level turnout-rate changes.

3 | Riding leads changed since 2024

Twenty 2024 NDP-winning ridings are currently led by the Conservatives; the NDP currently leads Courtenay–Comox, which had a Conservative winner in 2024. These are preliminary leads, not certified results.

Riding	NDP ’24	NDP ’26	NDP swing	Current leader	Lead votes
Vancouver-Fraserview	57.2%	41.7%	-15.5 pp	Conservative	387
Burnaby Centre	57.3%	41.9%	-15.4 pp	Conservative	780
North Vancouver-Seymour	52.8%	37.4%	-15.3 pp	Conservative	2,461

Port Moody-Burquitlam	52.1%	42.1%	-9.9 pp	Conservative	1,075
Vancouver-Langara	48.4%	39.0%	-9.5 pp	Conservative	1,651
Richmond-Steveston	44.3%	35.0%	-9.3 pp	Conservative	3,840
Vancouver-Yaletown	49.8%	41.0%	-8.8 pp	Conservative	844
Surrey-Guildford	46.9%	41.0%	-5.9 pp	Conservative	1,473
Vernon-Lumby	42.7%	37.8%	-4.9 pp	Conservative	3,255
Surrey City Centre	46.7%	44.2%	-2.5 pp	Conservative	395
Juan de Fuca-Malahat	38.8%	38.1%	-0.6 pp	Conservative	773
Cowichan Valley	40.5%	42.3%	+1.8 pp	Conservative	152

NDP gain: Courtenay–Comox is currently led by the BC NDP by 679 votes; its NDP share increased +6.5 percentage points compared with 2024.

A seat can change leads even when one party’s vote share increases. Cowichan Valley, for example, has a slightly higher NDP share than in 2024 while the Conservatives currently lead. This is a comparison of aggregate votes, not individual voter behaviour.

4 | Green vote share and party coverage

The BC Green share rose from 8.24% in 2024 to 10.96% in the revised 2026 preliminary count. The party is leading two ridings, the same number of ridings it won in 2024.

Largest Green share increases in ridings where the party contested both elections

Vancouver-Strathcona	13.1%	28.9%	+15.9	-13.1
Saanich North and the Islands	36.2%	48.5%	+12.3	-14.7

Vancouver-Hastings	10.9%	18.9%	+8.0	-12.9
Vancouver-Fraserview	6.2%	14.2%	+8.0	-15.5
Victoria-Beacon Hill	33.5%	40.3%	+6.8	-1.7

Candidate choice and measurement limits

• The Greens contested 69 ridings in 2024 and 73 in 2026. Some riding comparisons are therefore affected by whether the party appeared on the ballot.

• The “Other” column contains several distinct parties, unaffiliated candidates and independents. Its composition differs between the two elections; it is not a single political party.

• The BC NDP did not field a candidate in Peace River North in 2026. A zero share in that riding cannot be interpreted as a pure change in underlying support.

• Declining NDP share alongside rising Green share does not establish that specific individuals switched parties. Other explanations can include turnout, candidate choice and changes in the electorate.

5 | Closest races and methodology

These are the closest leading margins following the November 5 preliminary verification. Outstanding vote-by-mail and absentee ballots may affect rankings and leaders during final count.

• 2024 source: Elections BC Statement of Votes, 2024 Provincial General Election; certified party totals and riding-level results.

• Percentage-point swing = (party votes / all valid votes in 2026 − party votes / all valid votes in 2024) × 100, calculated riding by riding or for weighted regional sums.

• 2026 province-wide preliminary participation = 1,798,960 ballots considered / 3,738,182 registered voters as of October 14, 2026; the 2024 electorate denominator is from a different reference date.

• The comparison uses the same 93 riding names and may be affected by changes in candidate availability. A lead is not a formal election declaration. Final count is scheduled for November 6–10, 2026.
